NATIONAL LAUREATE

A LEADING light of the abolish English for science and maths campaign has a new book.

The media reports that the Higher Education Ministry and the Malaysian National Institute of Translation (MNIT) will hold a road show nationwide to promote A. Samad Said's book, Bisik Warna.

Deputy Minister for Higher Education said "the book was a work of arts (sic) and words from the national laureate on life, organisations, leaders and philosophy". He commended the setting up of BM book corners in stores and urged "university vice-chancellors, deputy vice-chancellors and professors to lead by example by writing books".

These bureaucrats are well-placed to create literary works and hopefully MNIT will translate these masterpieces for the larger public. Syabas.
